We have created this guide to share our experience of Moshi Monsters and so that both parents and children make informed choices on how to play the game safely whilst having fun too.

Since this guide has been created independently it has not been endorsed in any way by the makers of Moshi Monsters (Mind Candy Ltd).

History of Moshi Monsters

Moshi Monsters is a very popular social networking online game where children can adopt and look after a virtual pet online called a Moshi Monster. The game is designed for children aged between 7 and 12. In this game the player adopts and looks after a pet monster, solves various puzzles which to earn money called Rox. Rox is therefore the currency of the game and one of the key resource, which players use to buy objects for the monsters, such as clothes, foodstuff, and furniture.

The game is published by a company called Mind Candy Ltd, which is a British business. Mind Candy, developed the game in 2007 then launched it in 2008 (April). Only a year later, by December 2009, the game counted 10 million users. By March 2010, a total of 15 million users were playing Moshi Monsters and the game went viral with more than 25 million players by September 2010. As at June 2011, The latest announcement that Mind Candy made on the number of users, was that the game counted more than 50 million players. The majority of players are still in the UK and Moshi Monsters is now reportedly played by one third of British Children (something that cannot be verified of course). Moshi Monsters sign up are bringing revenue to Mind Candy from both paying memberships and merchandise licensed to the company.

Is Moshi Monsters like Facebook for children?

The site has sometimes been referred to as "Facebook for children"; however, the game presents a number of differences to Facebook, for instance no third party adverts are displayed, there is no live chat facility and the site is also strictly moderated.

As of July 2009, revenues were substantial, according to Mind Candy CEO Michael Acton Smith. Investors have included Index Ventures, which backed Last.fm, and Accel Partners, which has invested in Facebook.

As of June 2011, the British company behind Moshi Monsters (Mind Candy) has been estimated to be worth U.S $200 million.

In 2011 Mind Candy has sought to move into the toys and merchandise business, launching a variety of products including toys, books, trading cards and a magazine (Moshimag). In February of the same year, Moshi Magazine was set to become one of the leading children's magazine in UK.

How to Play Moshi Monsters Safely

Fun, Education, Safety

As the official site states, and emphasizes on their introduction page to parents, "the three core elements at the very heart of the Moshi Monsters experience are FUN, EDUCATION and SAFETY."

Parents should read the Moshi Monsters sign in guidance given on the official site: www.moshimonsters.com site to make certain that the children play Moshi Monsters safely and make sure that their children follow simple rules to protect themselves such as "never giving their personal information on line even when asked".

Our recommendation is that parents should play Moshi Monsters with their youngest children as this has the dual benefit of "sharing some quality time together" and keeping an eye on what goes on in the game, which has a social dimension where players can contact other players (online social interactions cannot be controlled and moderated 100%). Clearly this approach is less likely to work with older children which should therefore be made aware of what to do and not do on line, in particular what information they should not share with others (e.g. name, age, gender and other personal information).

Choosing a Moshi Monster

After getting authorization from their parents and guardians before signing up (ideally), children can pick one of six Moshi Monsters - a Katsuma (rabbit-like monster), a Diavlo (tame-looking devil), a Furi (a cross between Big Foot and "Sulley" Sullivan from Monsters, Inc., a Zommer (a drooling zombie), a Poppet (cute little rodent of some type?), or a Luvli (sort of a flying tomato?).

The next step is to choose colors for the monster, give it a name and click agree to the "terms and conditions" of the site.

Knowing the basics

Children nurture their monster by resolving puzzles win virtual prizes and rewards like Rox. Children can then spend Rox on virtual things like food-items, furniture and other cool items and toys for their monster. With more and more practice, Moshi Monsters will level up and this will open up new parts of the game, such as giving access to more locations in Monstro City, which is the virtual city, where the game starts. Moshi Monsters should be managed: Mood, Health and Happiness.

There is a limited quantity of Rox that any player can receive in any particular day. Solving every day puzzles earn maximum Rox (around 70-130 on average per day). This is a good reason for players not to spend too long playing on line.

Moshlings

Moshi Monsters can adopt their own pets too, which are called Moshlings. The number of Moshlings is likely to increase, we know of 40 Moshlings (all different) in total and collecting those Moshlings is one of the more enjoyable aspect of the game.

Social networking

A great feature of Moshi Monsters is the social networking interface. Moshi Monsters can add and visit friends in their homes, and can send bulletin board messages to approved friends. You are also able to visit homes of the characters that you encounter in Moshi City plus rate their room. Moshi members are also able to send gifts to other members. Although there is no option to live chat, the friend's list, board messages and ratings offers a partial sum of social networking. This is a functionality which enables the site content to be moderated to a greater extent than a mainstream social networking site. This clearly makes sense given the young players base.

How to Become a Super Moshi

Leveling Your Monster

Every monster begins their relationship with the player from the very first level. Whilst they will rapidly level up to Level 2, with the aim of expressing their happiness, they perform unique Leveling Dance for you. Increasing their level further than Level 2 may require several attempts from your side.

Every time the monster levels up, they will show their triumph with their unique dance, moreover, they will get a trophy as a reward for that particular level. These prizes are only useful to exhibit as souvenirs and you cannot sell them for Rox.

Play the game regularly to increase your XP (experience points), but be aware that there is a limitation to earn Rox or XP daily.

You should take good care of your Moshi Monster: You should feed it, play with it, care for it and get it to meet other monsters. This will maintain its health and improve its mood. In return your monster will be willing to complete the activities you need to get Rox or XP.

Moshi Monsters gain experience and level up by performing these activities:

- Being Fed
- Buying new Things
- Being Tickled
- Daily Challenge
- Changing your Room
- Playing with their Master
- Mini games
- Solving Puzzles

Completing the Daily Challenges and visiting the Puzzle Palace also helps leveling up: you can do those by clicking a button inside your room. They are generally educational quizzes and other games almost all of them are quick to complete.

Visit the shops, pay attention to discover new and rare things to buy. The items in stock change on a daily basis, so keep visiting the stores.

Another way to earn XP is to make changes to your home.

There are also challenges and mini games like the "Ice Screaming Store" that you can play if you want.

The developers of Moshi Monsters continue to create new and exciting levels, to keep players interested, so it is a good idea to always keep your eyes open for the latest challenges.

How to level your monster to Super Moshi

You must be a paying member in order to complete the mission and so that you become a Super Moshi. After completing the Super Moshi Quest, you will obtain the Super Moshi Box, which is a red and yellow box with the initial letters of "Super Moshi" (S and M) on its surfaces.

Click on the box to add to your Gift Box; after that, unwrap the Gift Box and then use the reproduction box inside in order to access the assignments.

Click on the Play button to see the video guide from Super Moshi Central, which will give details what is taking place and wherever you are wanted.

Go to the Volcano. There you will be given further training from The Gatekeeper. He is an Aztec-style figure beside the lava flow. He shows you the way to go to the Super Moshi HQ. On your first time there, he says to you "To enter, go to the building for rent on Sludge Street. There will be a clue that will help you find the first guardian of the secret code.

Use the city map to travel to Sludge Street and go into the building on the far-left with the 'For Rent' mark. Inside, you should notice a "code wheel" on the partition. The guide is a character with three eyes, to the left of the building who will give you the opening code.

He will tell you that "The guy reading a book on Main Street also holds part of the code. Speak to him to continue your quest."

Go to the Main Street to locate that guy and speak to him- he will give you the next letter, and then say to you "I'm sure the guy listening to music on Sludge Street has another letter," so return Sludge Street at that point! You should tell the music fan that you require three letters to fulfill the puzzle -- and he will give you the third and final letter (keep a note of the letters).

Go back to the 'For Rent' construction, notice the piece of manuscript (like a piece of paper) on the floor and click the piece of manuscript on the ground, which has the "letter-to-code" signs on it, and then discover what the three letter code tell you, then put it into the code wheel. Then you will open the key, there will be an explosion out of the middle of the wheel.

Click on the key to get it, and you will be asked to go back to the Gatekeeper and speak to him. Go back to the Volcano and place in the key into the Gatekeeper. Then you will be asked in incredibly easy words that you should be a full member in order to unite the Super Moshi HQ and to enter. You will be unable to enter if you are a free member.
